

CARMEN'S STORY

The seventh of January 1715 during the celebration of the evening mass, the church of the Immaculate Conception of Arquillos burned. All the people could be saved, except Leonor, who died because there was a lot of smoke and fire. Her family buried in the cemetery the following day. But Leonor's soul was locked in the church where it is still. Every year since then, the neighbors hear footsteps the night of the seventh of January in the church. Also at three o'clock a.m. the same day when everybody is sleeping, the Tower Clock chimes and it remembers what happened a lot of years ago.
